More than just a fancy light switch, ZOO Automation is an Australian developed home automation system that can be configured to provide simple light and climate control features, or the full range of security, media and entertainment, home access and energy management experience.

ZOO Automation is a retrofit system, so it is easy to install in an existing home, regardless of its age, as well as being a great addition to new constructions. Take advantage of the retrofit nature of ZOO Automation to reconnect with your past customers and offer them a home automation upgrade, which is sure to add considerable value to their home.

Retrofit Easy to Install System

ZOO Automation is so simple to install your first year apprentice could do it. Its behind the wall modules can be retrofit to any home, giving the average home owner access to luxury conveniences previously afforded only by the wealthy. ZOO capitalises on existing cabling infrastructure, with the exception of CCTV, touch screen and gateway.

Reliable

The ZOO Automation system and components are all engineered and produced by a single manufacturer, ensuring maximum compatibility and dependability. Tested in extremely sensitive and demanding environments where failure was not an option, ZOO is a highly stable and reliable system. Manual overrides give customers peace of mind that they will never lose control or be locked out of their home.

Simple to program & operate

ZOO Automation was designed to ensure it can be operated by even the least tech-savvy customers, with a simple touch screen interface. The system comes to you pre-programmed, making it a truly straight forward installation, with no continual revisits required to customise the system.

Hassle Free Upgrade Options

Should a customer wish to include more ZOO Automation modules in their system, it is a case of merely programming and 'unlocking' further features in the already installed system. Only CCTV Security installations would require wiring work.
